Long ago, humans used to die and then rise again. Then one day the Creator said, "It is not beneficial that human beings should even die. I want to make sure that they don't die at all."

He sent an emissary with a message of immortality. He summoned Chameleon and gave him the message. "Go and deliver this message to the people. Tell them that, as Creator, I have decided that people will never die. They will live forever.

Chameleon approached the crowd and began delivering his message. But he was not a skilled orator. "...I....I...the ...th...th....ssshh...prrr...prrr" As he struggled to deliver the message, Parrot, who was a better orator, suddenly appeared and said, "I have the real message... the genuine message from the creator. He sent me to tell you that people will always die and vanish from the face of earth." And he swiftly flew off.

From that day on, people started dying without rising again from death.
